

Gov. Wise's Appeal to Naturalized Citizens

In view of these facts, the following remarks made by Governor Wise at Norfolk, Virginia, on the 27th of September, are particularly interesting, while they are certainly entitled to the respectful consideration of those who are so much opposed to him:

We are the midst of another crisis, as dangerous and threatening as that of 1855. Then, it was your rights of conscience and of franchise which were especially menaced. Now it is my right of slave property, and, in many instances your right which is particularly endangered. And even now I protect my own rights by defending yours. In 1855, so in protecting my rights now, you will defend your own rights and interest, your dignity and honor. Do not misunderstand me. I have no fear that you will cast your votes for the farago, the Union, the Lincoln, or the Federalist and Ku Klux. Nothing, John Bell.

I know that you will choose between John C. Breckinridge and Stephen A. Douglas. It is the subject of this choice that I would consult with you.

When I addressed a crowded audience at Wheelen, partly composed of a Know-Nothing mob of the plug ugly order, the chief of police thought it necessary to place a strong guard of constables in the building, and warned me that there was no danger of attempting violence. For myself I had no fear; I was not afraid to face a mob of Know-Nothings.

I was speaking, there stood on one side a creature of brutal aspect, wearing a dress made of the skins of footed beasts, and a shaggy beard reaching below his waist. This man, appropriately named "Wolf," had been formerly a preacher of the Gospel by profession—was then an avowed infidel and Know-Nothing. There he stood, wolfish wolf and a wolfish one! the best illustration of the word of "Satan" I met with during the whole summer.

As to the indecorous haste made by some of Mr. Douglas's supporters, that the fact of his wife's being a protestant or the Catholic faith will secure for him the Catholic vote, I will not pause to consider it. It would be an insult to the members of that church to believe that any respectable number of its communicants have adopted the Know-Nothing practice of making a man's religious profession, or the religious faith of his household, a test of political support.

In 1855, Mr. Breckinridge and Mr. Douglas possessed equal claims to the support of naturalized citizens. Now Mr. Breckinridge possesses a claim to such support superior to that which of Douglass and equal privileges should be presented to naturalized and Catholic citizens. They defend at home and abroad, in their equality of civil and religious freedom. Mr. Breckinridge stands upon the avowed platform of protection to civil equality. Mr. Douglas is the stump advocate of a policy of sectional aggression—a fatal anti-slavery spirit which first organized Know Nothingism itself for anti-slavery purposes.

Again. Hitherto abolition and Catholic citizens have found their chief palladium of protection in the Democratic party. Mr. Douglas is now distracting and dividing that party, and, as far as he can, contributing to its defeat. The same charge cannot be justly directed against Mr. Breckinridge. Wherever Mr. Breckinridge divides a minority from the main body of the Democracy

Again, Mr. Douglas, like Mr. Lincoln, is the advocate of a policy injurious to the property of slaveholders, and to the dignity and equality of Southern States. Fellow-citizens, naturalized and Catholic, are you slaveholders? If you are, remember that Mr. Douglas is assailing you, and that he is assailing your property. That Mr. Douglas is assailing the sovereign rights of your State. And if there are any here present who are neither Virginians nor slaveholders, still to them I have an appeal to make. I am a Virginian and a slaveholder. When your rights of conscience and of franchise were assailed, I freely lent all my efforts to your protection. My rights of property, my social safety, my political rights, my Union, and my individual self-respect, are all now assailed, and I ask you all for my protection.

sure and distressing that it is slow and progressive. Not that we predict an immediate dissolution of the Union as the consequence of the success of the anti-slavery slogan, and the war upon the institutions of the South which it boldly heralds. It will take years to accomplish that fatality; but, in the meantime, two or three years to come we shall witness a fearful struggle, a series of events of commercial importance, and the land which that event would wholly ruin to them all. The ligatures that bind this country together will stand a great deal of wear and tear before they snap; but in the approaching condition of things, fore-shadowed by the present political prospect, the country will be too likely to be torn through some terrible throes that shall leave it a single interest, throughout, than lengthen out was a political one in its origin, commencing in the contest between the United States Bank and the State banks; but it culminated in a commercial disaster, after nearly seven years of financial calamities; and inasmuch as the country is twice as populous and four times as rich now as it was then, and has vastly larger resources to sacrifice, the consequences must be proportionately greater.

If the anti-slavery party of America should ever attain power, with its avowed sentiments of hostility to the South and destruction to all its institutions and interests, it must either go to perdition or it must go ahead in the path it has marked out. It cannot stand still and live. If it goes to perdition it will drag down with it all the commercial interests of the North, and arrest the progress of the whole country; if it goes ahead propelling the warship of Freedom, it will sweep

Mr. Douglas, who was also on the vessel, held on the railing, and escaped without injury. Both the Senator and his lady immediately returned to their hotel, and their departure will be delayed a few days by the accident.

Abandoned.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 3.—Hon. H. M. Bates, the defauling State Treasurer, absconded from Northfield last night, and has fled to Canada. The amount of his defalcation, as far as ascertained, is $42,000, and it is expected that further disclosures will increase the amount.

From Philadelphia. November 2.—The Sheridan Knowles, lost in the steamer Arcite, was not the author, but the Philadelphia agent of the American Bank Note Company, charged with the performance of work for the Emperor of Russia.

From Norfolk. November 3.—Ex Gov. Wise spoke last night to an overflowing house, and his remarks were greeted with tumultuous enthusiasm. He defended the resolutions adopted in Princess Anne county, and sustained the organization of the Minute Men, denouncing those who would not stand by the South at the present crisis, when their rights were threatened by the North. After he had concluded, the Princess Anne resolutions were put to vote and enthusiastically adopted without amendment.

that the people of a Territory had not the power and right, as is claimed and contended for by Judge Douglas and his friends, to exclude slavery from the common Territories by "unfriendly legislation" or otherwise. On this subject Judge Douglas was not only silent, but was positively reticent, as far as the question was concerned. He would not tell us after the speaking that he was the ablest debater they had ever heard on that great and at present all absorbing question.

When he came to speak of John C. Breckinridge, he paid him one of the most just and beautiful eulogies we have yet heard from any orator in the present canvass.

He was frequently applauded during his concluding and well digested speech, and the most profound attention was paid him. The citizens of Harrodsburg were so much delighted with his masterly effort that he was soon invited

We will not attempt to give a synopsis of the available and convincing speech made by Gov. Powell—because we have not space for it in our columns nor could we do him justice were we to attempt it—he has to be heard to be appreciated—standing on the rostrum before an audience, his very looks are full of argument and eloquence. He is a man of such intimate acquaintance with the audience with Judge Douglas and with his appreciation his great mental abilities, and admire his amiable social qualities, the Governor showed very clearly that Douglas had departed from the true faith; had violated well established Democratic principles; for the sake of office had sold the party, and for these sins he ought to be degraded from the office by a vote of the Legislature. We trust our friends who are here it be too late, will rally to the support of the gallant and chivalrous Breckinridge. No man will ever have occasion to regret a vote cast against him.

New York, Nov. 2.—The Northern Light reports the sloops-of-war Leicester and St. Mary at Panama, and the screwship Brooklyn and storeship Falmouth at Aspinwall on the 25th.

Advices from Valparaiso are to the 2d and Callao to the 12th-14. October. The steamer Moses Taylor had touched at Leica.

The ultimatum to the American government had been rejected by Peru, so far as regards the Lizzie Thompson, Georgiana, and Saratoga claims. This refusal would compel the American minister to demand his passports.

The ship Lucky Ann Isale was partially burnt Oct. 6th.

At Callao a frightful accident occurred on the 19th in the dry dock at San Lorenzo, involving the entire loss of the Peruvian brigate, formerly September waiving much rejoicing.

Martinez was again at the head of affairs.

Mr. Demery was pressing the Government for a convention to settle American claims, but was unsuccessful. Martinez, however, had consented to call a meeting of Congress on the 15th of October, when the ratification of the Larraín Zenteno treaty might be effected within the time specified.

Mr. Vanderbilt has made the Government an offer of transit, but was not accepted.

Advices from Guayaquil state that Flores was disbanding his forces, but that the Peruvian President, Castilla, still maintained a hostile attitude, and was seeking permission from his Congress to declare war against the Ecuadorians.

Mr. Anderson Gray, of Grayson county, one of the strongest and most influential men in his part of Kentucky, was in the city on Saturday. He left for home that evening, intending to speak to day for Breckinridge and Lane, and in behalf of the Constitution and the Equality of the States, in his county. He brings us cheering news from Grayson. Douglas had many friends there until the result of the October elections convinced them that the contest was between Breckinridge and Lincoln. They have now all followed Mr Gray's patriotic example, and will vote for Breckinridge and Lane.—Lou. Courier.
